

Advancing Economic Opportunities of Women and Girls in Bhutan

TARAA's expertise has been contracted to provide technical support to enhance the capability of the National Commission for Women C to promote gender equality and perform its role as the national machinery for the advancement of women in Bhutan.

Particularly to strengthen the role of women in economic development in Bhutan by understanding the gender differences in economic participation and economic growth. The support will also include building the capacity of the MOLHR and NGOs in gender mainstreaming, project management, project monitoring, and impact assessment and to ensure that all training and other capacity development interventions to be provided to NGOs in entrepreneurship development will be sensitive to gender equality issues. One of the tasks is to provide training the employment service center staff of the MOLHR on gender-sensitive job counseling.
